I am an experienced scientific writer, having spent 16 years in protein biochemistry research in Australia and the US prior to 14 years as an academic editor. I specialise in research papers, grant proposals and theses from any scientific discipline, including engineering, social sciences, medicine and finance. Many of my clients are ESL; as well as proofreading, I edit to improve clarity, expression and the flow of argument to publication standard. Second round editing is included if required.

I have a Master of Publishing and over six years of editing experience working on everything from fiction, academic papers (dissertation, thesis), through to marketing material and business documents. I have an Arts and Psychology background and offer structural or copy editing as well as proofreading.

I’m an academic editor with 20 years’ experience, in the humanities, law and business. I’ve been an Accredited Editor with the Institute of Professional Editors since 2011. My client Cambridge University Press has called me one of its ‘best editors’. I greatly enjoy working on theses, and am particularly keen on improving communication clarity. I have worked in referencing styles such as AGLC, APA 6/7, Australian Government Style Manual, Chicago Manual of Style and Harvard.

Students will find my prices very reasonable.

I have a PhD in medicine and specialise in medical and biomedical thesis formatting, proof reading, and editing. I can also assist in journal publications and figures formatting. I have extensive experience in editing theses for submission and journal articles for publishing. International students are welcome. Also fluent in spoken Mandarin.

Merran has been a freelance editor for more than 12 years, since working in the Australian Institute of Health and Welfare’s publishing unit. She now enjoys copy editing postgraduate theses as well as a variety of reports and other editing / writing jobs in a range of disciplines; and also works with university students in Canberra as a Learning Support Advisor. Merran is a member of the national Institute of Professional Editors.

Experience with overseas students and in all subjects. Student discounts and quotes given before starting work. With 20 years of experience, I’ve proofread hundreds of theses, books and journal articles. I also edit for Sydney University Press, ANU Press, Monash University Publishing and many other clients. I have studied at PhD level in English at UNSW and Cambridge University. Contact me anytime for a CV and a quote.
